

AJ Inglis, LCSW is the Outreach and Program Manager at SHIFT, a leading-edge initiative at The University of Texas at Austin aimed to change the culture of substance use on campus. She received her BA in Psychology from St. Edward's University and her MS in Social Work from The University of Texas at Austin. AJ has over a decade of experience in program administration and clinical practice in a variety of settings, including hospital systems, nonprofits, and government agencies. Previously serving as Outreach Specialist for the Texas Opioid Abatement Council, AJ is truly passionate about addressing the opioid crisis in her home state of Texas.