

Haylie Stobaugh is a Program Director at a sober living home in the Austin area, where she focuses on creating a structured, supportive environment that helps women build strong foundations in recovery. She brings a passion for leadership, accountability, and community into her work, supporting both clients and staff in meaningful growth.

She is currently pursuing a degree in psychology to deepen her understanding of mental health and better serve those in recovery. Outside of work, Haylie enjoys spending time outdoors and being around animals, finding balance and connection in nature.