

Dr. Masters has been in the practice of Addiction Medicine in Austin, Texas full time since 2009. Prior to that, he practiced Internal Medicine and did his residency in Internal Medicine at Brackenridge Hospital, graduating in 1990. Dr. Masters has been on the front lines of two major epidemics: the AIDS epidemic and the Opioid Overdose epidemic. Dr. Masters has worked in a variety of settings including: inpatient drug rehab at Texas Star Recovery; Methadone treatment as a medical director; and his own outpatient practice. In addition to the evaluation and treatment of patients, Dr. Masters is a Clinical Assistant Professor of Medicine teaching medical students, residents, and PA students. He won an award for 15 years of dedicated service to the students of Texas A&M School of Medicine in Round Rock. Dr. Masters' hobbies include: auto mechanics; chess; going to the gym; basketball; film noir; blues music; medical podcasts; and UT Sports.